Ralph Norwood, Mrs. Lucy Norwood, Pauline Reed and Earle Reed of Lowell, Mass., are spending a two week's vacation at Amasa Robbins' cottage by Lake Penesseewassee.

The camps along the shore of the lake are nearly all occupied. Around the islands one is reminded of "city on the water" when all the boats are out patrolling the waters.

Irving Frost was at home, Sunday. He reports business booming at Poland Springs. His daughter Minnie has a good job in the office of Fields Bros., and Gross' shoe shop.

Mrs. R. M. Swan and grand-daughter, Frances Bartlett, are spending the month of July with Arthur H. Swan and family, who have a cottage at North Weymouth, Mass., for the summer.

Who can beat it? C. R. Whitman had green peas and new potatoes on July 1st for dinner. Open air culture. No forcing. Name of peas, Knatt's Excelsior. Name of potatoes, Bupee's best early. Lets hear from others.

The wind blew a gale all day the Fourth and had it not been for the showers previous we would have seen more dust and dirt in the air. The lake was decidedly ruff but the steamers ran their regular trips, besides making several specials.

A very pleasant carriage drive and outing in Waterford was recently enjoyed by a party from Norway. Among them were Mr. F. E. Frost and daughters, Messrs. A. Noyes and Alfred Monk, also Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Greenleaf of Otisfield. Lunch was eaten at Mrs. Frost's and Mrs. Greenleaf's birthplace, on Crooked river.

Harry Morse's baseball team went to Harrison, the Fourth, and played two interesting games of base ball. The first game was 6 to 0, the second 4 to 0 both in favor of Harrison. The teams were not very evenly matched, as the Harrison team were much the larger, but notwithstanding the difference the Norway boys put up a very good game of base ball and all the boys played well.

There was a good attendance at the Opera House Monday evening, when the farce-comedy "Along the Kennebec" was presented. The play represented the country in a rural district and the acting was unusually good. The scenery was also first class. During the action of the play there were incidents continually happening which kept the audience in a continual peal of laughter.

The fourth this year was ushered in as the clocks were striking the hour of twelve in its usual way by the ringing of the church bells and the serenading with canon crackers and crackers of all kinds. The boys, as well as the girls were out early celebrating, exchanging signs, removing fences and up to all sorts of tricks as well as "being noisy." On Water street some who felt like "raising Cain," even went to the trouble to put a sleigh astride the ridge pole of Dearborn's home and the body of another over the chimney.

After some other business had been disposed of came the election of officers:

Sec.-Mac R. Bartlett, Bethel.

Press Cor.-Annie C. Bagley, Norway.

Executive Com.-Mrs. Helen Ohlms, South Paris; Mrs. Bessie Monk, South Paris; Dr. Wendell Rounds, South Paris; Clara Jordan, Norway; Addie Lee, Norway; Ed. Kneeland, Norway; Oscar Needham, Norway; G. Coffee was served by William Kimball Post, South Paris, and for the next hour the lunch box was much in evidence.

The executive committee met at 1:30 and voted to hold the next annual meeting at Central Park, June 17, 1911, and that Harry Rust Post and W. R. C. of Norway furnish coffee; and did someone say beans? Let us hope so. After the committee meeting came the Camp Fire, that most pleasing feature of all. Led by Rev. Mr. Davis, all joined in singing that grand old hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Rev. Mr. Davis' interesting words made by Mrs. Sarah Putnam pertaining to the organization as it is, and what it may be in the future. An original poem was read by Mrs. Alice Maxim, entitled "A Word to Old Glory," which is given below. Mrs. Mac R. Bartlett gave a humorous recitation, "A Boy's Diary," which was enjoyed by all. We could almost see the boy as she recited his troubles. Comrades Warren and Bridgman gave several selections on fire and this was great. Rev. Mr. Davis rendered two solos, "My Mother's Prayer," and "The Ninety and Nine," but the event of the day was in the speech by Rev. J. H. Little, Dept. Chaplain of Maine G. A. R. It was a talk worth going a long way to hear, a grand word picture of the Civil war from the lips of one who had been in the midst of it and knew whereof he spoke.

Col. Eustis told of the many battles of the Civil war that were won on the 4th of July by the Boys in Blue, many of which came from old Oxford County. The remarks by Rev. Mr. Davis were appreciated. His talk was illustrated by Bible and flag. The Camp Fire furnished songs, readings and recitations, after which they were invited to the dining room for a treat of punch and candy.

It was a great day and a grand good time all around. Where were you? Come next year and see.

A Word to "Old Glory"

Written and read by Mrs. Alice Maxim.

"Old Glory" the flag of a country united! Our hearts fill with rapture as we look up to thee!

The sweep of thy folds by the morning sun The glint of thy stars—most beautiful to see. The bells chime in memory of Freedom's first birth—threes

As from England's hard ruling she strove to be free Yet welcomes a thought of our nation's dead heroes

Our hearts weep with sadness that it needed to be.

O, why must the robes of fair Freedom be trailing? For what blood of our nation's best youth?

And why is the Pan, or the Word unavailing To carry right on the evolution of truth?

We need not artillery's boom, nor the rattle Of muskets, or Maxim guns, pouring hot shot

We need honest men, in front of the battle, Armed ever with Truth's flaming sword, sharp and hot.

We need in our Congress a bold Patrick Henry, Who will set aside the rules that hamper the free.

We need a new Lincoln to rout the dread enemy.

Greivous corruption, and to unchain the white slave.

We need a new Washington, like the first, who led us With his grandest endeavor, his best father- love.

We need his strong hand from wrong ways to arrest us, And guide us, with wisdom inspired from above.

We need in each heart a love for humanity, That shall surpass any love for one's self; We need to reach high above self's inanity To a patriotic duty, regardless of pelf.

Then, O great country grow grand in her beauty.

And bloom fair as the rose blooms, from With her sons all faithful to a patriot's duty.

Her daughters a loyal, self abnegating band. "Old Glory" we hope that thy stars, in their whiteness,

Will yet float over a country in every way free; And thy stars, as they shine in the New Morning's brightness,

Be guardians of peace over our land yet to be.

Democratic Convention.

One of the Largest Conventions Ever Held Here.

The Democratic Convention was held at South Paris, July 2, and was very largely attended.

The chairman, B. G. McIntire, of the county committee called the convention to order at 10:45 after considerable delay while the list of delegates was being filled out. The secretary, W. O. Frothingham, read the call for the meeting.

B. G. McIntire announced Matthew McCarthy of Rumford as the choice of the county committee for temporary chairman of the convention.

Mr. McCarthy expressed his gratitude for the honor bestowed on him to preside over the convention. He said he should not make a speech, still he wished to say that the size of the convention indicated a wonderful amount of interest on the part of the democrats, and that there is a great enthusiasm in all the conventions this year.

Frank E. DeCoster of Norway and L. R. Rounds of Waterford, were chosen temporary secretaries. The county committee was appointed a committee on credentials and reported that 96 delegates were entitled to seats and that 96 delegates were present, either in person or by proxy.

The choice of a committee on resolutions was next to be chosen. Mr. L. Kimball of Norway, moved that the excellent platform of the state convention and the resolutions of the district convention be adopted as the platform of the convention and the motion was carried.

The Burial of the Porcupine.

Written for the Advertiser.

There was many a porcupine descended from the hills to the plain.

To feast upon the sweet corn.

That he returned again.

For the farmer ever vigilant.

As he searched among the growing grain.

With his quills and keen sight.

Where the whip-poor-will's shrill song

Was heard to echo through the night.

But we thought as we hastily filled up his grave

By our lanterns flickering light.

At the sudden and heavy spades,

Woke the stillness of the night.

Of the beautiful harvest God had given,

The sunshine and the rain.

To call from out the fertile soil

The verdure of the plain.

How from the green hillside had come

The creature of his care,

And we so wondrously denied

His ancient and his rare.

And how the whip-poor-will still would sing,

But her voice so loud and clear

Till she was one with the sound,

Her notes could no more cheer.

O'er his trodden path

Would interleave the weeds and brambles

And his lone home be desolate,

Upon the mountain brow.

With sudden hearts we turned away,

As a repentant tear we gave

To moisten the turf where the night dew fell

On his cold and silent grave.

LATINUS.

The Intervals of Maine.

When the winter days are over,

And the streams are running free,

And the finest sweet bloom of clover,

Sends its message to the bee.

When the leaves about the apple,

"Mid the crows in the boughs,

And the trout up stream are leaping

To the shadows of the falling

Then the water brooks are calling.

In the old familiar strain

To where the river is falling

In the intervals of Maine.

There's a partridge's distant drumming,

In the farthest of the dell.

And a humbler bee's humming,

Neath a honeysuckle bell.

There's an odor in the daisy

Of the twin flower and the ferns,

That we breathe in the air,

Of the exiles that returns,

General Highway Improvement.

On Monday, June fourteenth, at the Cory House, in August, Maine, was held the third meeting of the special committee of the State Grange appointed by the State Master, as a result of a resolution passed at the last annual meeting of the State Grange, to consider the matter of general highway improvement.

At the meeting held on the fourteenth representatives of the State Board of Trade and the Lewiston and Auburn Automobile Club were present, as well as the state commissioner of highways. These parties were all present at the second meeting of the committee some three weeks ago. At these two meetings the general road situation was talked over very thoroughly with especial reference to the maintenance and repair of the common dirt roads and the execution of the ordinary town road work.

At the meeting three weeks ago the committee was unanimous in its opinion that changes in the existing laws relating to the maintenance of highways, and the carrying out of road work and authority for enforcing those rules and regulations. After three weeks of thought and study the committee were again unanimous in its opinion that this was the best way in which must be taken in order to secure a change in the present-day maintenance.

As a basis for discussion and by way of opening the question at the meeting three weeks ago the state commissioner was called upon to briefly outline the new system of highway administration recently put into effect in the state of New York, where the State Commission has supervisory powers over the expenditure of all road money, whether raised by the town, the county or the state. Their scheme of administration briefly is as follows:

A State Highway Commission having supervision of all construction and maintenance work; county or district superintendents, the district superintendent being appointed by the State Commission to have charge of one or more counties where the Commissioners of such county or counties fail to appoint a superintendent; and finally the town superintendent who is elected by the voters of each town for a term of two years, but who may be recalled at any time after a hearing on charges of incompetence, malfeasance or misfeasance in office, preferred by the State Commission or by twenty-five voters in town.

The State Commission annually prescribes rule and regulations for the expenditure of town maintenance money. All work is done subject to the inspection of the county or district superintendent, whose orders must be obeyed, and who reports to the State Commission.

This system of supervision is made possible in New York state on account of the state paying a certain percentage of the cost of all maintenance work.

The committee of the State Grange and their associates in conference feel that the principles of intelligent centralized supervision is the first change which must be made in our present system to bring about very material changes in results.

It is the desire of the committee to give this idea as wide publicity and as general a circulation among the people of the State as possible.

The members of the committee are W. C. Hanson, Winthrop, Maine; R. F. D.; George Alden, Gorham, Maine; and E. M. Lawrence, Rockland, Maine.

The next meeting of the committee will be held at Augusta, on August first at the office of the state highway commissioner.

Letters commenting on or criticizing the conclusions of the committee as expressed in this letter may be addressed to any member of the committee or the state highway commissioner, Augusta, Maine, and all letters will be given consideration at the next meeting of the committee.

Encourage the Farmers.

Strawberry time is with us again with the luscious fruit we all love so well. Nothing more delightful comes to us through the year and nothing takes the back aching work to bring it to perfection as this same strawberry.

Yet I'll warrant we are at the same old business of trying to buy them for nothing, and the cheaper we buy them the more farmers are going out of business. In another year a commissioner will have to be appointed to see why strawberries are so high.

People won't crawl around in the dirt for us for nothing.

Yes, I know we are going to whine now and say, "how high everything is," and "how hard it is to pay the bills," but I'll be bound we'll take in the heat show this week and go dressed in dainty clothes the farmer can't afford because he has been robbed of his just dues.

Isn't it about time we divided with the farmer unless we want to see higher prices and worse times.

If ladies knew the back aching work it is to crawl around in the sun and much those strawberries that no particle of grit may affect their dainty taste, they wouldn't meet the strawberry man at the door with a firm determination to buy them at half price.

Let us see we wear no clothes or take in no pleasures this summer that rightfully

A Little Journey in the West.

East Clarindon, (R. F. D. No. 1) June 16th, 1910

EDITOR ADVERTISER.—On Monday, May 23d, I bade my Hurly friends farewell and boarded the north bound northwestern train to Parker, nine miles distant, where I stayed all night and called on quite a number of my friends there. Parker is the County Seat of Turner County and has a population of some twelve to fifteen hundred. We have a court house that cost us $30,000. It is a model city with fine schools, church, and other public buildings. The many large stores and dwellings, and no saloons.

It may be of interest to some of your readers to know that this part of South Dakota is in the corn, cattle and hog belt, and that we do not raise, as many seem to think, all wheat. This section of the state is often called the "Cow Counties" to distinguish them from the northern section where much wheat is raised, and the western section, where until the last few years, vast herds of cattle, sheep and horses have been kept. But little wheat is raised in Turner County, the main crops being corn, oats and hay. Farm lands are increasing every year in value and now range all the way from sixty to one hundred and twenty-five dollars per acre.

At one p. m., Tuesday, I boarded the east bound Milwaukee train at Parker and started out on my fourth annual vacation trip, a thousand miles, to this bright land of summer flowers, near the washed shore of Lake Erie, and in the state of Ohio. How swift the train moves on. At Canton we cross the Mississippi at McGregor and are upon Wisconsin soil, and at four a. m. Wednesday we reached Madison, the capital city of Wisconsin, three hundred and eighty miles from our starting point, and where I tarried until Friday noon, a self invited guest of my old time friends, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heald.

These good people are the old home nest in Center Lovell, nearly fifty years ago to seek their fortune in the west. They lived for a while in Pennsylvania, then tried their fortune in the wilds of South Dakota at Broadland, Beddle County, and later on to Madison, Wisconsin, that they might enjoy the advantages of its splendid University for the higher education that their children wisely improved the opportunities that were given them is proved by the fact that the son is now one of the leading professors in the University of Texas located at Houston, and the daughter, the honored wife of one of the foremost professors of the University of Wisconsin.

Mr. Heald has been a carpenter as well as a farmer and quite a number of the substantial residences of Madison were built by him. His method was to buy a desirable lot and build thereon and then when he could get his price, sell and build again. His home, retired from active business and with his noble wife and helpmate, they are now passing the evening of their lives in their beautiful home on University Heights.

He owns several nearby city lots and he finds both a pleasure in planning and tending a fine garden, and also tends to the family horse and keeps a year's supply of wood all fitted for the stove in his basement cellar. Mrs. Heald busies herself with her household duties, and as a pastime, her hobby is to catch poultry in which she takes much pride. A half block away in a grand old mansion all their own, the daughter with her husband and three bright eyed happy children, live, and the hearts of "The Old Folks" at home are often cheered and made glad by the merry laugh and joyous songs of the dear ones that they love so well. That their last days may be their best days, and that they may live yet many years to enjoy the fruits of a well spent life is the wish of their many friends.

Madison, besides being the Capital of Wisconsin, is the seat of the University of Wisconsin, with its five thousand student population forms the nucleus for a city of 30,000 population. The city has a grand location between two lovely lakes, Mendota on one side and Monona on the other. These lakes are well stocked with fish, ranging in style and size from the "quomatic" bullhead to the royal muskellunge, measuring from four to six feet in length. The fishing law prohibits the catching of any of the latter that weigh less than four lbs. As we are law abiding citizens we did not angle for any of these big fish, but enjoyed our fishing with a three hour boat ride with red and blue, in which we landed 32 fine perch. Madison, with its beautiful lakes, fine fishing and boating, its fine streets and shady parks and with its magnificent public and private buildings, is a city of which the citizens of this state of Wisconsin may well be proud.

With Mr. Heald as my guide, we traveled over the city and visited some of the public buildings. The Capitol building, when completed will be a grand and noble edifice. A few years ago, the old building, was badly damaged by fire, it was condemned and a new one begun. The two wings have been completed and they are now at work on the central part which includes the great dome. I was told that the fire that occurred to mar the building of one of the wings. The last great block of granite weighing many tons had been hoisted to its place in the apex of the gable, and with the man in charge standing upon it, was settling in its place and the tackle removed. But some one had blundered, the great stone below had not been keyed and made fast, and with a fearful crash the great stone, carrying with it many others, fell to the pavement far below. But one life was lost, that of the man in charge. The stone was still laying where it fell, a mournful reminder of a forgetful man, who sacrificed his own life and endangered that of many others.

In the Horticultural, Dairy and Agricultural departments of the great University, experiments are going on all the time that are of priceless value to the farmers of Wisconsin, and thousands of young men and women are being taught the great principles of agriculture. And that is as it should be, for agriculture in all its branches is the foundation of all our great prosperity, and the mighty balance wheel that keeps all the industries of the land in motion.

On Friday noon I bade my friends good by and continued my journey, via Milwaukee to the big bustling city of Chicago, where I was transferred to the B. & O. depot and at 8.30 p. m. the same night continued my journey, and after an all night ride arrived at Youngstown, Ohio, about eight the next morning, and after waiting about two hours I took the Palmetto branch train and arrived safely at my journey's end an hour later.

The season here has been cold, backward and wet. Corn and garden truck is away behind, winter grain and spring sown small grain, is looking well. I will now draw this letter to a close, and if it escapes the waste basket, and the weather clears up so that I can get my bearings once more, in my next I will tell more about the Buckeye State. Politically Ohio is full of "Insurgents" but like those in South Dakota they are making the fight within the party and when the primaries are over they will all present a solid front to the old time political foe.

The Advertiser and my two South Dakota home papers reach me promptly each week, and I eagerly scan their pages for news from the home country. Mr. and Mrs. Williams and daughter, Margaret are spending the entire week in Cleveland, in attendance on the Ohio annual Sunday school convention, and I am at my old trade of keeping bachelor hall tending the chickens and attending to a very few household duties.

Trapping Bobolinks.

More than twenty years have passed since old "Biddy" Heald ceased to wander by country roadsides in June, with his trap for catching male bobolinks alive, for the sake of selling them to the dealers in the cities. "Biddy" was not a bad man—just depraved upon the subject of birds, fully convinced that a splendid male bobolink caught alive, that would perhaps net him from one to two dollars in cash, was of more value to him in a cage than it could be to God singing and making all the world delighted with its rollicking music out there in the sunny fields.

The practice was to carry out a captive male bobolink in a one compartment of a double cage, and set it up in a fragrant clover field where the wild bobolinks were singing to break their hearts, and then stand aside and wait for results. As soon as the wild bobolinks heard the captive singing they started up their musical instruments, partly from sympathy, though chiefly from rivalry, and soon ventured forward and alighted defiantly on the top of the cage. The weight of the bird was enough to trip the perch, and send the visitor down into a prison compartment, and set the cage again for the next capture. In this manner a man would frequently catch and hold all the male bobolinks that were singing along a country highway—perhaps a half a dozen splendid birds in the course of a forenoon, birds enough perhaps to bring two or three dollars at the shops of the Boston dealers, who as a rule charged about five dollars each for healthy males at retail.

Come to think it over now, the business seems to have been mighty mean to engage the attention of a healthy man. While the bobolink may make a hog of itself eating rice in the Carolinas, and get over-fat upon the seeds of wild reeds in Louisiana, here in Maine all these birds feed exclusively upon insects, capturing them on the wing, and are therefore helpful to the farmers. Meanwhile, a male bobolink in full dress of an accepted lover is the most gaudily beautiful bird that visits our northern homes, and its song is incomparable for its restlessness and vigor. No man who can hear can possibly be downcast or depressed when among the clover of June with the bobolinks singing about him.

Before a civilized and Christian citizen of Maine contemplates capturing bobolinks for sale he should remember that as early as August every year male bobolinks change their gay black-orange and white suits for garments of somber brown, and from this change on, while the birds remain in confinement, the glad wedding garments are never resumed. The song returns with the coming of the next spring, but the clothing remains while the cruel cage surrounds the singer.

Now when 75 per cent of the bobolinks have gone never to return, the law, backed by an indignant public opinion, has put a stop to trapping bobolinks, though when one thinks how jolly all our fields might have been had the remedy been applied earlier—[Bangor News.]

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking—none in outside heating.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat—no smell—no smoke.

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use the much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot. It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

A Letter from a Worcester Subscriber.

DEAR EDITOR:—This date reminds me that my subscription to the Norway Advertiser has expired for the third time since living in this city and I can but say that I have enjoyed it without the Advertiser even though I have come to open it with a fear that some one else has passed from earth life so many have gone in three years. A poem came to my notice a short time ago the more to be appreciated as the years go by. The first verse is this:

"The days grow shorter, the nights grow longer,
The headstones thicken along the way;
And life grows sadder, but love grows stronger
For those who walk with us day by day."

And so it is that we respond more sincerely to the greeting of old friends. Only they who are alone in a great city can truly appreciate the meeting of an old friend, whom they have known in years gone by.

We have recently passed another Memorial day. Each year a small remnant of a great army moves to honor those who are at rest. Soon the last survivor of the Civil war will be spoken of.

The streets of Worcester were thronged on May 30, to view once more the procession of Veterans escorted by all the military bands and companies of young cadets and soldiers in the city. The Veterans marched proudly from their headquarters to the Soldiers' monument on the Common, where services were held before visiting the several large cemeteries.

My mind went back to the time of the war, when I was a child, and my memory of that terrible time is only from a child's standpoint, but I do recall that many another child was fatherless.

I thought of the small company of soldiers laid to rest in the graves of Oxford county, Maine, and the faithful few who will forever honor their memory.

It was recently my pleasure to visit Beverly, Mass., the summer home of President Taft. We walked along the sea wall near his house and saw his yacht, "The Sylph," lying at anchor. The president's home is on a narrow peninsula and almost entirely surrounded by a thick growth of trees. The one entrance is barred and guarded night and day by civil service men. No car, automobile or inquisitive person is allowed to pass these bars without permission from some authority, thus giving the president the seclusion which he needs and which he needs and which is rightfully his. He is much criticized by church, which is filled to overflowing each Sunday. He visited Worcester the first of April, on the occasion of the meeting of the National Association of Railroad Men.

His visit occurred on Sunday and as far as the eye could reach the streets were thronged with people of all nationalities and distinctions, all eager to see the President. He looks just like his pictures, very fleshy and very pleasant looking. He was much criticized by some of the church people for allowing such a worldly display on Sunday, but I thought it but proved that "the world do move."

Not long since I visited Still river in the north woods of Harvard and with a party of friends I saw the house where Louisa M. Alcott lived when a child. In company with a friend, Mr. Alcott left the ministry and took up the study of Transcendentalism, a very long word meaning the knowledge of a true man and divine. There was so little financial result of this venture that the family was reduced to extreme poverty, and was forced in the dead of winter to move to the village of Harvard, where Mr. Alcott once more regained his senses and afterwards moved to Concord where the family grew more prosperous. The house at Still river is just like many a farm house of a hundred years ago. Once white it is now gray with age. There is a beautiful wide stone hearth of which Miss Alcott wrote and the same windows from which she looked. It was a beautiful view: the old-fashioned well-sweep, the apple orchard, the fields, but Mr. Alcott soon learned that life was something deeper than a dream.

Near my home is a beautiful hill called Green Hill Park. It was owned for many years by a family of that name. A mansion containing many rooms and surrounded by a wide variety of trees commands a beautiful outlook. The farm comprised 1,100 acres and much money was spent to make it one of the most beautiful in the State.

The owners died and the city of Worcester bought the farm for a park, paying $54,000 for the whole.

The great house is now used for private parties who love to dance in the large ball room, and for a museum, always open to the public.

The upper rooms are used as a hospital or rest rooms for tired mothers and sick babies who are cared for from a fund annually given for this purpose. In this way many poor people are made happy and recover their health. Green Hill is 777 feet above sea level, and from the reserve a glorious view of Worcester and the surrounding country is to be had.

Thousands visit here every Sunday, and still there is room for more. Not one day but several parties visit here, and each party is disturbed by the other. It is said that no other city has so many beautiful parks, and each park is patronized by appreciative crowds on all Sundays and holidays. It is said that all nations are represented in Worcester, and the greatest fear is that the Jews are fast owning much desirable property. True it is that the Irish have a strong hold, and said it is that the native-born American is so rarely found, and growing weaker with each generation.

All physicians in Worcester have a sign on the front of their automobiles; a green cross on a white ground; for the reason that they need not be held up by the police for speeding when answering a hurry call.

One noticeable feature at this season of the year is the wild flower display never seen in Maine. A ride into the country brings us in contact with acres of blossoming plums and white mountain laurel and lavender wild geranium. The season seems to be two or more weeks in advance of Maine, especially in the early spring. In winter we do not have much snow; indeed it has not seemed like the winters in Maine, more like a long, mild, autumn.

In closing my letter let me wish long life to the Advertiser and much joy to its readers.

GREENWOOD.

Rest This If You Can.
I have no paper to furnish in substantiation of the following story but repeat it exactly as it was told me.

Several years ago a man living in the vicinity received a few pumpkin seeds from a friend out West who advised him that they were a new and excellent variety, growing to a remarkable size. The party who lived here accordingly planted them in a field of yellow corn some distance from the house. After hoeing, he gave them no further thought until harvesting time, when going to the village one day he told his two boys to gather the pumpkins. Upon his return you may imagine his surprise to find no pumpkins in the barn and the boys still absent in the lower field. According to the next spring when the field was plowed to discover the cause of the delay. The boys were doing their best but the pumpkins were so large they had cut out in four quarters and had been left at the bottom of the field. On the old man's arrival were crying to roll one quarter into the cart, with the yoke of oxen without success.

The pumpkins were not gathered. Shortly after this a sow was missing. The next spring when the field was plowed the old sow was found with twenty-one pigs in one of the pumpkins where she had wintered and the pigs averaged a hundred pounds in weight. Comment is unnecessary.

Greenwood base ball team went to Bryant's Pond, June 25 and were defeated in a very interesting game of ball by the score of 5 to 4. Both pitchers pitched great ball; Chase for Bryant's Pond having struck out while Hunt for Greenwood had seven. Chase had better support or the result would have been different.

BRYANT'S POND.

The carpenters have commenced work on Tenmore Currier's new house. Bryant Pond defeated Greenwood in an exciting game of baseball. Score 5 to 4.

The Whitman Memorial Library has been opened to the public. Library hours 2 to 5 p. m. Wednesday 2 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m. Saturday of each week. Stella Baker Bacon is librarian. It is probably safe to say that there are few if any public libraries in the state, or any more attractive than the new building which has recently been opened to the public. The citizens of Woodstock certainly have reason to take a little pride in this new addition to the village and it is hoped that all citizens throughout town will avail themselves of its advantages, which the library holds out to them.
